Every service, every tier, every term — the single source of truth.

INTERNAL

Version 2.3
August 17, 2026

Internal document — do not send to clients. This contains cost floors, discount authority, and the social media rate card, which is never quoted publicly (public answer is always “custom quote”). Client-facing equivalents: Services & Pricing, Website Care Plans, and Local Visibility Retainer.

What changed. v2.0 — the all-inclusive plan gained a $500 setup fee and moved from $150 to $175/mo. v2.1 — ownership and offboarding policy; domains are never ours. v2.2 — bare hosting replaced by Hosting + Essentials at $25/mo; care-plan clients still pay $15 hosting, so Standard hosted stays $100. v2.3 — the all-inclusive value stack, the $75 reframe, and the no-upgrade-path guardrail. All in $3. v2.4 — the AI Search Audit moved from $750 to $295 (multi-location from $595), with the deliverable capped to match; the free AI-search check inside the spec-build call is now the door-opener. See $2.

2. AI Search Readiness Audit — $295

The gateway offer and the thing most clients buy first. One-time, platform-agnostic, and it produces the roadmap that every retainer conversation is built on.

Deliverable	Detail
AI visibility test	What Google AI Overviews and ChatGPT actually say when asked for a business like theirs — captured as screenshots
Competitor comparison	Who is being recommended instead, and why
Google Business Profile score	Completeness, categories, reviews, posts, Q&A, photos vs. top local competitors
Website & citation readiness	Crawlability, schema, NAP consistency, content gaps
90-day roadmap	Prioritized actions the client owns outright, whether or not they hire us

Multi-location: from $595. Rough guide — 2–3 locations $595; 4–6 $895; 7+ quote individually. Delivery: 3–5 business days. Payment: 100% up front.

Why it moved from $750 to $295 (August 2026). At $750 the audit was trying to be two things at once — a lead magnet and a product — and doing neither well. It was too expensive to open a cold conversation and not substantial enough to justify itself as a standalone engagement. At $295 it is unambiguously a paid entry offer: cheap enough to be an easy yes, but paid, which is the point. People who buy something small convert to builds and retainers far better than people who accepted something free.

The deliverable had to shrink with the price. $295 buys roughly two hours, most of it automated. That means no deep keyword research, no content teardown, no implementation, and no custom competitive strategy — those belong in the retainer. If an audit is taking more than about two hours, the scope has drifted and the margin is gone. The debrief call is included and doubles as the sales call; run it from the Call Scripts.

What replaced it as the door-opener: the free AI-search check inside the spec-build call. That costs nothing to produce and is now the top of the funnel. The audit sits one step in, sold to prospects who have already engaged — which is a better job for it than being thrown at strangers.

3. Website Design & Build

Two ways to pay for the same site: a custom, mobile-first WordPress build — modern design, persuasive copy, SEO foundation, contact form, 4 pages standard.

	OPTION 1 — OWN IT	OPTION 2 — ALL-INCLUSIVE ★
Price	$2,500 one-time	$500 setup + $175/mo
Cash due at signing	$1,250 (50%)	$500
Payment structure	50% start / 50% launch or 3 monthly payments	Setup at signing, then monthly
Includes hosting	— ($25/mo Hosting + Essentials)	✓

	OPTION 1 — OWN IT	OPTION 2 — ALL-INCLUSIVE ★
Includes care plan	— (optional, from $49)	✓ Standard ($85 value)
Ownership	Client owns outright at launch	MarketFresh owns & hosts until buyout
Commitment	None	12 months, then month-to-month
Year-one total	$2,500 (+$300 if we host)	$2,600
Best for	Clients with cash who want the asset	Clients who can't or won't write a lump-sum check

Own It Over Time — the current model (v3.0, supersedes everything below in this section)

The term is fixed at 30 months for every client. The financed amount is always $2,250 — thirty payments of the $75 build credit — so the kickoff absorbs whatever the site costs above that. A bigger site does not take longer to pay off; it starts with a bigger kickoff.

Pages	Own It Now	Kickoff	Opt 1 deposit	Lighter by
1–5 (our minimum)	$2,750	$500	$1,375	$875
6	$3,000	$750	$1,500	$750
7	$3,250	$1,000	$1,625	$625
8	$3,500	$1,250	$1,750	$500
9	$3,750	$1,500	$1,875	$375
10 (cap)	$4,000	$1,750	$2,000	$250

Three rules that come out of this table.

- Five pages is the studio minimum, and it applies to both plans. A one-page site and a five-page site both cost $2,750. Below five, give the pages away rather than discounting the price — "our builds start at five pages, so we'll put the extra ones to work for you."
- Own It Over Time caps at 10 pages. At eleven the kickoff ($2,000) passes the Own It Now deposit ($2,125) and the plan stops being the lighter door — which is its entire reason to exist. Above ten, quote Option 1 or write a proposal.
- At month 30 two things happen automatically: ownership transfers, and the monthly drops from $175 to $100 — Hosted Standard. This must be in the client's agreement. It is a contractual obligation, not a courtesy, and Stripe performs it via a subscription schedule.

The financing is genuinely free, and you can say so. Thirty months at $175 plus the kickoff comes to exactly $3,000 over the Own It Now price at every page count — and $3,000 is thirty months of care at $100. The client pays nothing to spread the cost; they pay for hosting and care they would buy anyway. This is a strong, true line and no competitor offering a payment plan can match it.

Why 30 and not 24. A 24-month term fixes financed at $1,800, which pushes the kickoff above the Option 1 deposit from nine pages up — the plan would have broken at exactly the size most of our builds land. Thirty months keeps it usable to ten pages and keeps the smallest kickoff at $500 rather than $250, which matters because the 12-month minimum term is what protects us if a client walks early.

Clients signed before v3.0 keep their signed terms. Carolina Dock Construction (9 pages, $3,750, $1,125 kickoff) pays off at month 35 under the old formula. Do not re-quote existing clients against this table.

Historical — why the $500 setup fee was introduced (v2.0 rationale, kept for context)

Before v2.0, the all-inclusive plan lost money on every deal. At $150/mo, $100 of that was already committed to hosting ($15) and Standard care ($85) — real services we deliver every month. Only $50/mo was left to recover a $2,500 build, which takes 50 months.

Because the term is 12 months, a client could take a $2,500 site, contribute $600 toward it, and leave. That's not a payment plan — it's a 76% discount.

Structure	Year-one revenue	vs. $2,500 own-it
Old: $150/mo, no setup	$1,800	-$700
$500 setup + $150/mo	$2,300	-$200
Current: $500 setup + $175/mo	$2,600	+$100

Where $175 sits against the hosting ladder

The all-inclusive price decomposes exactly — it is Standard care, hosted, plus a build instalment:

Plan	Monthly	What's inside
Hosting + Essentials	$25	$15 hosting + $10 basic protection
Lite hosted	$64	$15 + $49
Standard hosted	$100	$15 + $85
Pro hosted	$164	$15 + $149
All-inclusive build	$175	$15 + $85 + $75 toward the build

"Hosting and maintenance run a hundred a month regardless — the website itself is seventy-five. That's what you're financing."

That reframe is worth using on every Option 2 call. It turns $175 into "$100 you'd pay anyway plus $75 for a whole website," which is a much smaller number to argue with.

Why the all-inclusive plan includes Standard, not Pro

Pro cannot fit inside $175. Pro hosted is $164, which would leave $11/mo toward a $2,500 build — a 19-year payback, dramatically worse than the $150/mo problem v2.0 fixed. To include Pro and still route $75 to the build, all-inclusive would have to be $239/mo ($15 + $149 + $75), putting year one at $3,368 and destroying the "no big upfront check" positioning the plan exists for.

Standard is also correct on the merits. Pro's differentiators — staging, speed tuning, on-page SEO upkeep, quarterly AI checks — serve busy sites with traffic to protect. An all-inclusive client is typically a local business getting their first real site; Standard's daily backups, daily scans and an hour of edits is what they actually need.

Guardrail: never offer Option 2 as an upgrade path to an existing care-plan client. All-inclusive ($175) sits only $11 above Pro hosted ($164). Those are different buyers — a Pro client owns their site and won't trade that away — but the arbitrage is real if anyone works it out: a current care client could get an entire new website for $11/mo more, and we'd be funding a $2,500 build for that. Option 2 is for new builds only. A current client who wants a rebuild pays Option 1, or takes Option 2 with a fresh $500 setup and a new 12-month term.

$175 also puts clear daylight between the all-inclusive plan and Pro care ($149). At $150 the bundle that includes a whole website cost barely more than maintenance alone — which quietly told clients the build was worth nothing.

Never call it a "setup fee" on a call. Call it the design & setup or build deposit. It pays for real work — discovery, design, build, content migration, launch — and it credits toward ownership, so it isn't a fee at all.

“Two ways to go. Own it outright — $2,500, half to start. Or all-inclusive: $500 to get the design and build going, then $175 a month covering hosting, updates, security, backups, and edits. Same site either way — the monthly just means you're not writing a big check on day one. And every dollar counts toward owning it if you ever want to.”

Buyout mechanics — read this before you quote it

Credit only the build portion, not the whole payment. If every dollar credited toward the $2,500, a client would hit $2,600 at month 12 and own the site outright — while also having consumed a year of hosting and care for free. The care and hosting portion is a service already delivered; it can't also buy an asset.

The rule: the $500 setup credits in full, plus $75 of each $175 monthly payment. The other $100 covers hosting ($15) and Standard care ($85) — services rendered.

Point in plan	Paid toward build	Buyout price
At signing	$500	$2,000
Month 6	$950	$1,550
Month 12 (minimum term ends)	$1,400	$1,100
Month 18	$1,850	$650
Month 24	$2,300	$200
Month 27	$2,525	$0 — client owns it

“If you ever want to own it outright, we credit your setup fee and the build portion of what you've paid against the $2,500 — so the longer you're with us, the less the buyout costs. Stay a bit over two years and it's simply yours.”

On buyout, the client receives: full WordPress admin, the site files and database, and hosting migration assistance. Early cancellation (before month 12): remaining months of the initial term are due. Scope: 4 pages standard; additional pages $250 each at build time. Copywriting and stock imagery included. E-commerce, booking systems, and custom functionality quoted separately.

Billing start, launch commitment & the content clock

The kickoff and the first month are both due at signing, and the 12-month term starts at signing — not at launch. Before this was defined, a client who sat on their content was carried free for as long as they liked, and nothing in the agreement said otherwise.

Starts at signing	Starts at launch
Hosting and the staging environment	The included monthly edit time
WordPress core, plugin and theme updates	The monthly report
Off-site backups (SiteGround)	Uptime and broken-link monitoring
Security scans
The build itself — the credit portion	Only these three wait — none of them means anything until the site is public.
The 12-month minimum term
The buyout credit clock

Nearly the whole monthly is delivered from day one. During the build we are already patching WordPress core, plugins and themes, and SiteGround is backing the site up — that is the same work the care plan describes, running before launch. Only the client-facing pieces wait, and only because they are meaningless on a site nobody can reach. Do not tell a client "care starts at launch" — it understates what we are doing and invites the fair-value question we do not need to lose.

Included edit time does not accrue and does not roll over. A client who pays two pre-launch months does not arrive with two banked hours. Use-it-or-lose-it, from the month they go live. The reason it starts at launch is not that we are withholding it — during the build, revisions are part of the build and are not counted against the hour, so the client is getting more, not less. Frame it that way. This was undefined in every document before v2.5 and is the kind of gap a client eventually finds.

Launch commitment

Business days from complete content, not from the day content starts arriving.

Scope	Launch within
Up to 6 pages	10 business days
7–12 pages	15 business days
13–20 pages	20 business days
Over 20 pages	Stated in the proposal
Any e-commerce build	Stated in the proposal

If we miss the window and it is our fault, the client's next month is free. We control that side, so the exposure is small — and volunteering the fair half is what lets the rest of these terms land without an argument. Reps should offer it before it is asked for.

Reps never quote a launch date outside the ladder. Over 20 pages and every store gets a date written into the proposal after scoping. Stores in particular move on things we do not control — payment gateway underwriting, domain transfers, app reviews.

Complete content means: text for every page; images or written approval to use stock; logo files; and for stores, product data in our template — title, description, price, SKU, weight and dimensions, and at least one image per product. The clock pauses whenever we are waiting on the client for a decision, or on a named third party. Name those exclusions in the proposal.

Ownership — what is theirs, what is ours

We never own a client's domain. Ever. The domain is registered in the client's name, in the client's account, and stays theirs regardless of what happens between us. If we register it on their behalf during onboarding, it goes in their name and they get the credentials at launch. Say this out loud on calls — it's a trust-builder and a genuine differentiator.

Theirs, always — no matter what	Ours until buyout
Domain name and registrar account	The site as built — design, layout, theme, and custom code
Logo and brand assets	Hosting environment
Photos and copy they supplied
Google Business Profile and all listings	Transfers to the client on buyout (see schedule above), or at month ~27 when
Email accounts	the credit reaches $2,500.
Form submissions, leads, and customer data

What happens if they stop paying — the offboarding path

This is the scenario most likely to produce an angry ex-client, so it needs to be defined before it happens, not improvised during it. A client who cancels at month 12 has paid $2,600 and — without a clear path — walks away with a domain pointing at nothing. Handle it well and it's a buyout conversation instead.

When	What happens
Day 0 notice or missed payment	Send the offboarding note: their two options (buy out, or leave), the current buyout price, and the date the site comes down. Site stays live.
Days 1–15	Standard late-payment window. Site live, services continue.
Day 15	Care work and edits pause. Site stays live.
Day 30	Site comes offline unless they've bought out. Domain untouched — it's theirs, they can point it anywhere immediately.
Days 30–90	Full backup retained. Buyout still available at the frozen price — plenty of clients come back here.
Day 90	Backup deleted. Send a final notice at day 75 before this happens.

Lead the exit conversation with the buyout, not the shutdown. At month 12 the buyout is $1,100 — almost certainly less than any rebuild they'd commission elsewhere, and they already know and like the site. The declining buyout price is the best retention tool in this plan; make sure they know the number. If they want the site to stay live, the answer is to buy it out — then it's theirs and they can host with us on Hosting + Essentials ($25) or a care plan. We don't keep an unmaintained site online for a client who has left.

Hosting & Essentials — the maintenance floor

We do not host a WordPress site that nobody is maintaining. An unpatched install on our server is our liability — our infrastructure, our build, our reputation, and unbillable cleanup hours when it gets exploited. Out-of-date plugins are the #1 way small-business sites get hacked. Bare $15 hosting with no updates isn't a product; it's deferred risk we absorb for free.

Hosting decomposes cleanly:

Component	Price	Who pays it
Hosting — the infrastructure	$15/mo	Everyone we host
Essentials — basic protection	+$10/mo	Anyone without a care plan
Hosting + Essentials (default)	$25/mo	No care plan

Care-plan clients keep paying $15 for hosting, not $25. Their plan already includes weekly updates and daily scans — better than Essentials. Charging Essentials on top would bill them twice for the same work. Standard hosted stays $100.

What Essentials includes — and how it compares

	HOSTING + ESSENTIALS $25/mo	STANDARD (HOSTED) $100/mo
Hosting + SSL	✓	✓

	HOSTING + ESSENTIALS $25/mo	STANDARD (HOSTED) $100/mo
Core / plugin / theme updates	Monthly, breakage-checked	Weekly, breakage-checked
Malware / security scan	Weekly	Daily
Off-site backups	Weekly	Daily
Uptime monitoring	✓	✓
Restore after a mishap	Billed at $95/hr	✓ included
Support tasks (content + minor theme)	—	1 hr/mo
Broken-link monitoring & fixes	—	✓
Monthly report	—	✓
Support	Incident only (down or hacked)	Full, 2–3 day turnaround

Why the split works. Essentials contains only what stops a site becoming a problem — updates close the vulnerability, scans catch what got through, backups allow recovery, uptime tells us it happened. Everything in Standard beyond that is service the client experiences: the hour of support tasks, the fixed links, the report in their inbox, someone answering the phone. It won't cannibalise the $85 plan, because everything people actually pay maintenance for sits above the line. An Essentials client who wants a photo swapped gets quoted $95/hr; the second request pays for the upgrade.

Cadence is the lever — same categories, materially less service. That is how hosting companies tier it, and it's honest: Essentials isn't maintenance, it keeps the lights on and the doors locked.

Competitive position — say this out loud

	MarketFresh	WP Engine Startup
Price	$25/mo, no annual commitment	$30/mo • ~$25/mo annual only
Traffic limits	None	25k visits, then $2 per 1,000
Support	A local person who answers	Chat only (phone starts at $55/mo)
Updates	We apply and check them	Client's responsibility (or a paid add-on)

"WP Engine's entry plan is thirty a month, and that's chat support with a traffic cap — go over and they bill you two dollars per thousand visits. We're twenty-five, no cap, no annual contract, and you get me on the phone."

Hosting-only ($15/mo) — by exception

Some clients genuinely maintain their own site, or have their own developer. That's a legitimate case — the risk is a site nobody maintains, not a site we don't maintain. Hosting-only stays available on request, with conditions:

- Client signs a written acknowledgment that updates and security are their responsibility.
- No backups, no scans, no support included. Recovery work billed at $95/hr with no guarantee of a restore point.
- We reserve the right to require a plan or suspend the site if it becomes a security problem for our server.
- Offered by exception, not advertised. Default quote is always $25.

Migrating existing $15 hosting-only clients. Grandfather anyone genuinely self-maintaining onto the waiver above. Move everyone else to $25 at renewal with 30 days' notice, framed as what it is: "we're now patching and backing up your site, which we weren't before." A $10 increase that buys real protection is about as easy as a price rise gets.

Contract language — get this right

The monthly must read as a subscription for the use of a MarketFresh-built website, with the buyout credit described as a courtesy. It must not read as "payments toward a website." If the agreement looks like an installment purchase, a client who has paid $2,600 has a genuinely arguable claim that they already bought it. Have a lawyer review the Option 2 agreement before signing anyone onto it.

5. Local Visibility Retainer — any platform

Google Posts	1 / week	2 / week
Review responses	Within 48 hrs	Within 24 hrs + recovery plan

	CORE — $295/mo	GROWTH — $495/mo ★
AI-search re-test	Quarterly	Monthly
Rank tracking	10 keywords	25 keywords + 3 competitors
Strategy call	Quarterly	Monthly

90-day initial commitment, then month-to-month. Full detail and client-facing explanations live in MarketFresh_Local_Visibility_Retainer.pdf. The single upgrade argument for Growth: a new published page every month — that's what wins searches the homepage can't reach.

Growth's page is a local landing page, never a blog post. One service, one city, built once to rank. Blog Content ($6a) is a separate product on a weekly cadence. Keeping these distinct matters: if a rep describes Growth as "we write your blog," a client can reasonably ask why four posts cost $595 when Growth appears to include writing for a $200 upgrade. They are different deliverables doing different jobs, and they sell together.

6a. Blog Content & SEO Writing

Sold as a monthly cadence, never per post. A single post accomplishes nothing and a client who buys one and sees no movement blames us for the whole idea.

Tier	Posts / month	Monthly	Effective per post
Starter	2	$345	$173
Weekly ★	4	$595	$149
Authority	8	$1,095	$137
Growth retainer + Weekly	4 + landing page	$995	vs. $1,090 separate

Included per post: keyword selection, a written and edited draft of roughly 900–1,200 words, one image, internal links to revenue pages, meta title and description, and publishing. Minimum term six months. Sold only to clients on one of our WordPress plans — we need publishing access and control of the on-page setup, or we can't be held to a result.

How the price was set. Market rate for agency blog writing is $200–800 per post, with full-service content retainers at $2,000–6,000/mo for a four-to-eight post cadence. That top end is content agencies selling to funded B2B companies and would wreck our positioning with a local contractor on a $175/mo plan. At our $95/hr rate a post runs about 1.25–1.5 hours all-in, so four posts is 5–6 hours — meaning $495/mo would be break-even. $595 is the first number that carries real margin while still reading cheap against anyone else they call. Floor: never below $125 per post, in any bundle, for any reason.

Why this doesn't undercut Growth. Growth's included item is a local landing page — one service, one city, built once to rank and left alone. Blog Content is an editorial cadence answering pre-purchase questions. Different deliverables, different jobs. If a rep blurs them and calls Growth "we write your blog," a client can fairly ask why four posts cost $595 when Growth appears to include writing inside a $200 upgrade. Instruct reps to keep the two named separately, and to sell them together.

6. Branding & Logo — PROPOSED, not yet locked

Decision needed. The client-facing sheet currently says only "one-time package" with no number, which means it gets improvised on calls. Proposed tiers below — confirm or adjust before publishing.

Package	Price	Includes
Logo Only	$950	3 initial concepts, 2 revision rounds, final files (SVG/PNG/EPS), light & dark variants

Package	Price	Includes
Brand Basics ★	$1,750	Logo Only, plus color palette, type system, and a 1-page brand sheet
Full Identity	$2,900	Brand Basics, plus business card, social profile kit, vehicle/signage mockup, and a short brand guide

Bundle: included at no charge with any website build over $2,500 in scope, or $500 off when purchased alongside a build. Payment: 50/50.

7. Social Media Management — INTERNAL ONLY

Public answer is always “custom quote.” These numbers are for scoping and internal consistency — they do not appear on any client-facing sheet.

Tier	Monthly	Cadence	Scope
Starter	$450	2 posts / week	IG + FB, in-house content, basic caption & hashtag work, monthly recap
Growth	$850	3 posts / week	Starter + light community management, monthly content calendar
Pro	$1,400	4–5 posts / week	Growth + Reels/short-form video, active engagement, monthly strategy call
Premium / Custom	$2,000+	Daily-ish	Pro + full community management, campaign planning, quarterly strategy

LinkedIn add-on +$200/mo. Paid ads management $350/mo or 15% of spend — ad spend always billed to the client's card, never ours. Three-month minimum. Content produced in-house.

Karing Hearts Cardiology — $2,500/mo, 3 posts/week. That cadence maps to Growth ($850), so the account is priced at Premium. Two defensible paths: keep the deliverables genuinely rich (community management, Reels, strategy work) to justify the number, or proactively ease toward ~$1,800 in exchange for a longer term. Don't leave the gap unaddressed — it's the kind of thing a client eventually benchmarks.

8. App & Custom Software

Online booking, ordering, scheduling, quote tools, internal automation. Never quote from a phone call.

Stage	Price	Notes
Paid discovery	$1,500	Requirements, user flows, technical approach, and a fixed-price build quote. Credited toward the build if they proceed.
Build	Scoped	Typical small-business tool lands $6,000–$25,000
Ongoing support	From $250/mo	Hosting, monitoring, updates, and a support allowance

Always sell discovery first. It gets paid for the hardest part of the work, and it filters out clients who were never going to fund the build.

9. Add-ons, rates & terms

Item	Rate	Notes
Hosting + Essentials	$25/mo	Default for any hosted site without a care plan. Hosting $15 + Essentials $10. See §3.

STANDARD TERMS

- Commitments: Audit — none. Own-it build — none. All-inclusive build — 12 months. Care plans — month-to-month. Local Visibility — 90 days. Social — 3 months.
- Payment: Audits 100% up front. Own-it builds 50/50 or 3 payments. Recurring services billed on the 1st, card on file.
- All-inclusive billing starts at signing — kickoff plus the first month. The 12-month term runs from signing, not launch (§3).
- Included edit time never rolls over, on any plan, and begins at launch on an all-inclusive build — during the build, revisions are part of the build and are not counted against it.
- Launch commitment is 10 / 15 / 20 business days by page count from complete content; over 20 pages and all stores are quoted in the proposal (§3).
- Late payment: Services paused after 15 days past due; site restored on payment.
- Ownership: Own-it builds transfer at launch. All-inclusive transfers at buyout (§3).
- Domains are never ours — registered in the client's name, in their account, at all times.
- Offboarding: 30 days live after cancellation, then offline; 90-day backup retention; buyout available throughout (§3).
- We never host an unmaintained WordPress site. Minimum is Hosting + Essentials $25/mo, unless the client signs the self-maintenance waiver (§3).
- Care plans cover WordPress only — say so plainly rather than taking money for work that won't help.
- Scope changes are quoted before work begins, never billed as a surprise.

10. Lead routing — which offer for which lead

Lead situation	Lead with	Then
No website (11 in the list)	Website build — Option 1 or 2	Roll onto a care plan after launch. Fastest closes in the whole list.
Existing WordPress	Care plan + AI Search Audit	Audit findings open the door to the retainer. Do not offer Option 2 — it is $11 above Pro hosted and would fund a free rebuild (§3).
Shopify / Wix / Squarespace (~34 listing-based)	AI Search Audit + Local Visibility Retainer	Never pitch maintenance. WordPress rebuild only if they raise it.

Lead situation	Lead with	Then
Rating under 4.3★	Reputation angle + free AI-search check	Retainer Core — review management is the visible win
Strong existing site (most Nurture tier)	AI Search Audit only	They don't need a site; they need to know they're invisible to AI

11. Discount authority & floors

Service	List	Floor	Give it away when...
AI Search Audit	$295	no discount	Never — it is already the entry price. Waive it entirely only when bundling with a signed build.
Own-it build	$2,500	$2,000	Paid 100% up front, or a strong referral source
All-inclusive setup	$500	$250	Split $250/$250 across months 1-2 rather than discounting
All-inclusive monthly	$175	$150	Only to save a deal already verbally won
Care plans	$49–$149	no discount	Never — trade annual prepay instead
Local Visibility	$295 / $495	$250 / $425	6-month commitment in exchange

Trade, don't discount. Every reduction should buy something back — a longer term, up-front payment, a testimonial, a referral, or case-study rights. A price cut given for free teaches the client the list price was never real.

12. Open decisions

- Branding & Logo pricing ($6) — proposed $950 / $1,750 / $2,900. Needs a yes before it goes client-facing.
- Karing Hearts ($7) — hold at $2,500 with richer deliverables, or ease toward $1,800.
- Bundle pricing — care plan + Local Visibility run together with no defined discount. Suggested: 10% off the retainer when both are active.
- Multi-location audit tiers ($2) — the $595 / $895 / quote ladder is a working guide, not yet locked.
- Is Lite still worth keeping? At $64 hosted it now sits between Essentials ($25) and Standard ($100). That $39 step buys 30 min of edits, weekly rather than monthly updates, and a quarterly report. Watch whether anyone actually chooses it.
- Option 2 service agreement — needs drafting and a lawyer's review before anyone signs onto the all-inclusive plan ($3, contract language).
- E-commerce pricing — WooCommerce and Shopify tiers are drafted in the separate E-Commerce Pricing Plan and are not yet locked. Seven open decisions there, including whether to build WooCommerce stores at all.
